This year's Haifa Blues Festival may be a bit light on traditional blues, but it boasts plenty of big names from the world of pop and rock.

By Steve Rodan

Blues by the Bay

More than 20 years ago, Freddy King couldn't imagine a woman and a guitar being brought into blues matrimony.

"The way I make my guitar sing, just like my women should," he sings in his blues classic "Me and My Guitar."

"She never talks back to me like some women do. I feel so sad and lonesome when I play those lowdown blues."

Ah, but those lyrics haven't exactly reflected Nineties behavior. These days, women can not only sing the blues; they also play the blues with an intensity that compares with the male guitar legends.

Some of the new women of blues will have an opportunity to strut their stuff at the three-day Haifa Blues Festival, which begins on June 27.

Organizers, seeking to bring in the huge crowds that will make their venture profitable, have branched out into soul and rock.

That doesn't seem to leave much room for the mainstream blues of Kokoro Taylor and Buddy Guy, who performed at the first festival in 1993.

PERHAPS THE biggest name at the festival in terms of the current musical scene is Sheryl Crow. After her debut release last year, she swept up Grammy Awards with her radio-friendly mainstream rock.

Following closely behind is the American guitar pop band Belly. A recent appearance on the cover of Rolling Stone cemented its position as the rock band of the 90s. Consisting of two men and two women, Belly finds pop hooks behind every turn and combines them with intelligent lyrics and an advanced sense of melody. Faith No More is an innovative alternative rock band from San Francisco that paved the way for the metal-funk-punk fusion that bands like Red Hot Chili Peppers have capitalized on. A bit too weird for mainstream tastes, Faith No More has an immense following in the colleges and the mosh pits.

Other name acts include P.J. Harvey, Suede and Terence Trent D'Arby. The festival will also feature a veteran blues artist, Pinetop Perkins, an 81-year-old Mississippi pianist who for years played with Muddy Waters.

The women coming to Haifa are young and hungry. P.J. Harvey is a blues woman who's found her profession in rock. Early in her recording career, she was chosen to open for U2, and today, only two years later, she has a successful album, To Bring You My Love, and a popular clip often viewed on MTV. On her latest release, she plays piano, guitar and several other instruments.

"I grew up listening to the blues through my parents," says Harvey, a British native whose initial stand for Pauli Jean. "To them music and blues was as important as food and water. They exposed me to this music, and it's a natural part of me."

To Harvey, playing a blues festival doesn't mean any change in her repertoire, the vast majority of which consists of originals.

On her current four-month tour of the US and Europe, she has played at unusual venues, including a radio festival in Washington, although she can't really describe what that means.

"For us, it's exposing people from all walks of life," she says. "So, I like to play all these odd festivals."

For Harvey, success has been remarkably quick. She has achieved international popularity after only four years in the business.

But maintaining stardom has not been easy. She describes a business that remains as corrupt as in the days of AM radio payola in the late 1950s. She recalls radio disc jockeys threatening not to play her records unless she paid their way on her international tour.

"The radio stations, particularly in America, like to think they're very important," she says. "Unless you're the flavor of the month, you're not going to get played. They're control freaks. It's a horrible situation, and it's getting worse."

SUE FOLEY doesn't expect to make it to MTV. She has stayed with the blues, singing originals and playing lead guitar with her trio. Her roots are the Rolling Stones and Led Zeppelin, both of whom did rock versions of blues classics. Foley searched for the originals covered by these British bands and eventually found her calling.

Unlike Harvey, the 26-year-old Foley gets her fans piecemeal. She tours half the year; or nearly 200 nights, most of them in bars. "I've been in Brazil, Australia, Japan and Canada," she says. "It seems that there's work for me everywhere."

"The blues guys who are known are just a handful," she adds. "For most of us, it's hard to get to that level because blues are not played on the radio. Right now, the blues are at the club level."

"As an artist, it's not important for me to get on MTV. I'm not a fan of MTV. Ninety-five percent of the stuff I don't like. As a businesswoman, it's important, but they don't really cater to what I do anyway."

Foley's latest album is Big City Blues. It contains mostly originals, peppered with hot licks and risky trills of her Fender Telecaster, a guitar that is slightly off the beaten track in an era when the Stratocaster model of Eric Clapton has been in vogue.

"I wanted something more unique," she says. "Muddy Waters has a Telecaster, and since Stevie Ray Vaughn became popular everybody's been playing the Strat."

Harvey and Foley have another thing in common. Neither has been in Israel.

"It's my first time, so I don't know a whole lot," says Foley, a Canadian native who has lived for seven years in Austin, Texas.

"I don't know what to expect in Israel," says Harvey. "I'm taking one day off to see things in the country."

Foley seems surprised by the question of whether she has ever visited Israel. To the devout, this may be the Holy Land, but for this blueswoman, Israel is just another gig on the circuit.

The road has been difficult for Foley. Her fare has not exactly been first-class air travel and 65-minute shows in air-conditioned arenas.

"You're always leaving your loved ones behind," she says.

"You're working very long hours in clubs so you never get much sleep. You don't eat right. It's hard on your health. Physically, I find it hard. I don't like to work too hard. I'm a wimp, I guess."

LA, NY go gaga over Mili

Young Israeli actress Mili Avital has an unusual professional problem: Wherever she goes, she just can't escape success.

By Allison Kaplan Sommer

Avital is back home to promote 'Stargate,' a $60-million Hollywood extravaganza in which she plays the female lead.

Talk about coming back in style. Mili Avital, curled up on the sofa of her plush suite at the Tel Aviv Hilton, polishes and glowing in a T-shirt and jeans, is the epitome of the conquering heroine returning home covered in glory.

The 23-year-old left here two years ago as a promising actress. She returned last week a rising Hollywood star.

Her Cinderella story has quickly become the stuff of local legend. After just one year in New York studying acting at the Circle in the Square school, she was "discovered" in the old-fashioned way that just isn't supposed to happen, except in the movies.

While working as a waitress at a Manhattan restaurant, she so impressed her customers, one of whom was an agent with the prestigious William Morris Agency, that they inquired if she was an actress.

Shortly after giving the agent her pictures and tapes of an Israeli film in which she starred, she found herself on a plane headed to Arizona for a role as the female lead in the $60-million movie Stargate, starring James Spader and Kurt Russell.

Nearly a year after its release in the US, Stargate has finally made it here.

Her only local work post-Stargate has been the summer's most controversial ice-cream commercial, where she mugs as a Hebrew-speaking Sharon Stone in the famous interrogation scene from Basic Instinct, asking her interrogator provocatively, "Want a bite, Mickey?"

At an advance screening of the movie, Avital's family and friends got to see her portrayal of an innocent maid who is part of an extraterrestrial ancient Egyptian cult, who captures Spader's heart.

"It was so great having my family and friends there together to see it. I felt like a deer who had gone out and brought back a deer. I felt so much pride coming home and showing this to my people," she says.

It is clear she is going to have more to show off in the near future. Stargate has served as an effective launching pad for what looks like a promising career.

Avital has already shot a small part in an upcoming film by trendy director Jim Jarmusch, opposite teen heartthrob Johnny Depp. When she returns from Israel this week, she will fly directly to Utah to begin shooting Invasion of Privacy, her first real leading role.

Clear evidence that Avital's star is rising in Hollywood was her inclusion in a recent issue of Vanity Fair magazine, in which she posed alongside other hot young actresses.

AVITAL GREW up in Ra'anana and began acting early, snagging a theater role when she was 17 years old.

What brought her to wide public attention was her part as a rambunctious daughter in the acclaimed 1991 film Me'ever Layam ("Across the Ocean"). Later, she starred as the quintessential rebellious teenager in Grouper, which was panned by the critics, though it was a formidable showcase for her talent.

Usually, actors hone their craft for years in classes, then pound the pavement looking for work. The great irony of Avital's career is that it has been the job offers that have gotten in the way of her studies.

She headed for New York in the first place because, after a few months of study at Tel Aviv's Nisan Nativ studio, she found it impossible to focus on being a student when so many tempting opportunities kept coming her way.

"The whole purpose of going away was not to work. Because I worked so much here and in so short a time, I felt that I had to go away and really explore the art, and not just deal with producers and directors and the press all the time. I wanted to focus on the work, and I really felt I had to grow," she says.

She was so uninterested in working as an actor in the US that she asked the school if she could skip its professional-orientation class that prepares aspiring actors for the real world.

"I told them, 'Listen, I'm not staying here, so all of these classes you have about the agencies and what to do with your head shots, I don't need this. I'm not interested. I just want to do the work.'"

"They said 'Fine, you don't have a green card anyway, so there's no chance you're going to work.'"

As a result, she knew nothing about American show business when she fell into the midst of it. Her Hollywood plunge found her woefully ignorant.

When she was told that she had an offer to be represented by the William Morris Agency, the most prestigious name in the business, she had no idea what it was.

"I was so ignorant that my manager had to fly over to me in Arizona while I was filming Stargate and explain how the system works. I had no clue."

Today, she winces at the word "ambition" but acknowledges that she has wholeheartedly entered the competition for the best roles in the top films.

"As soon as I got back from Stargate I said to my manager, 'Well, if I'm going to go for it, it's going to be all the way. Because I don't want to compromise.'"

"I grew up on excellence and dedication. That's how my role models—my parents—are, very much into what they're doing, and they believe in putting your heart into what you are doing, not just your brains. I believe it's the only way I can go. If it's possible, I would want to try to be on the A-list."

"My dream is to work with the best directors. Why not? I don't believe in limitations." She knows that her biggest barrier to this choice of roles is language, or more precisely, accent.

In Stargate, speech wasn't an issue because she spoke in an ancient Egyptian dialect subtitled in the film. Today, months of intensive work with a dialect coach has left barely a trace of an accent as she carefully enunciates her words.

"It's so funny to speak English right now; I feel like my accent is so heavy because I've been in Israel for a few days. Every time I come here, I have to have extensive repair work done when I get back," she says.

"That's my main focus in my career right now—besides expanding my abilities with different roles—is working on my accent. I want to do Shakespeare. If I can do Shakespeare in English, I'll be the happiest person in the world." But her drive has limitations.

She says that even though it could disturb her momentum in Hollywood, she would very much like to work in the theater or a project in Hebrew after Invasion of Privacy is shot.

She is unwilling to leave New York and head for Los Angeles, where she likely could pursue her career at a higher intensity.

"New York is my town. I'm a very grounded person, I think, and New York is a very grounded place and very real and very inspiring, and I love the variety of people and colors."

LA is the opposite: one color, one industry, everyone is an agent, actor or a producer. I go there about once a month, and I'd rather go there and make the trip and spend all the time in the airplane rather than living there, because I have to have the distance.

"Like in art, one needs aesthetic distance. In a museum, you have to stand back from a picture to truly see it."

"I feel the same thing. The work has to be disconnected from my life somehow."

Adina Hoffman

*** AMATEUR - A stylized parody of the self-discovery quest - Homer, Pirandello or pop-psychological - Amateur is by far the most satisfying of writer/director Hal Hartley's creations to date. Fresh and affectionate, the film takes shape with the out-of-body frisson of one of the pornographic stories written by Isabelle (Isabelle Huppert), a freckle-faced ex-nun who claims to be both a nymphomaniac and a virgin. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Not recommended for children.)

** BEFORE SUNRISE - Two beautiful strangers meet on a train from Budapest. He's American and must catch a plane for home at dawn; she's French and heading back to her studies at the Sorbonne. On a whim, he persuades her to disembark in Vienna and spend the night wandering with him throughout the stately city. At first glance, the simple outline of this Richard Linklater film resembles that of a classic shipboard or sleeper-car romance. But Jesse (Ethan Hawke) and Celine (Julie Delpy) are scrappier, modern sweethearts, and their discussions sound more down room than stateroom. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Not recommended for children.)

** BOYS ON THE SIDE - Three pretty women (Whoopi Goldberg, Mary-Louise Parker and Drew Barrymore) drive across the country. Along the way they laugh, hug, cry, reveal their deepest hopes and fears and paint each other's toenails. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Parental guidance strongly suggested.)

**** BULLETS OVER BROADWAY - Ozymandias as it may sound, Woody Allen's new movie is a perfect moral fable. Small, funny and wise, the film easily blends the gentle frivolity of the director's mature comic pictures with the heftier existential conundrums he posed in solemn mixed bags like Interiors and Crimes and Misdemeanors. John Cusack stars as an idealistic young playwright whose latest masterpiece finds an unlikely backer in a mobster, who wants his shiny, chorus girl squeeze to play Broadway. Bullets is Allen's most relaxed and thoughtful creation in years. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Parental guidance strongly suggested.)

**** CRIMSON TIDE - After years of watching homicidal androids like Schwarzenegger and Stallone empty rounds of automatic gunfire into the guts of their faceless victims, viewers will be glad to find Tony Scott's action movie feels different, bolder, grander, human. His characters - and they are characters, not robotic good guys or bad ones - only resort to their guns when they have no other choice, and even then it costs them dearly. Crimson Tide is complex where it needs to be, and spare in important places. It begins with a finely hewed theatrical premise: all the action will take place underwater. The drama's primary setting is the interior of an American nuclear submarine, where the crusty captain (Gene Hackman) and his thoughtful young second-in-command (Denzel Washington) vie for control of the crew and the deadly warheads. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Parental guidance strongly advised.)

**** DEATH AND THE MAIDEN - The most interesting bad movie of the year, Roman Polanski's film is based on Chilean exile Ariel Dorfman's nervous chamber drama about a victim of police torture (Sigourney Weaver) who confronts the man (Ben Kingsley) she believes raped and brutalized her, years before. Weaver's bearing is so horsey and all-American that her rage seems profoundly personal, almost hormonal. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Not recommended for children.)

*** 1/2 ED WOOD - Tim Burton's movie is designed for buffs of catastrophe, eccentricity and Edward D. Wood Jr., the man considered by many to be the worst film director of all time. This black-and-white biopic isn't meant to serve as an artistic defense of Wood's anti-masterpieces, schlock howlers like Bride of the Monster and Plan 9 from Outer Space. Instead, Burton and screenwriters Scott Alexander and Larry Karaszewski glorify Wood's badness itself, holding it up as evidence of his creative gusto. Ed Wood poses interesting questions - about art, devotion, quality, transsexuality and love - but it's often maddening in its refusal to attempt serious answers. With Johnny Depp hamming absurdly as Wood and Martin Landau as a poignantly doped-up Bella Lugosi. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Parental guidance suggested.)

*** I.Q. - No question, the idea of Albert Einstein playing puckish matchmaker for his brainy mathematician niece and a cheerful auto mechanic is implausible and almost unbearably stupid. This, though, does not seem to be the point of Fred Schepisi's movie. The point is that I.Q. also trips along with a zany, fool-for-love intelligence of a refreshing and not completely explicable sort. The film's goofy charm kicks right in with the cast list. Walter Matthau as Albert Einstein! The role of the Nobel Prize winner suits the actor - to a T. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Parental guidance suggested.)

*** 1/2 JUST CAUSE - With its characters, situation and Southern-gothic setting on loan from high-moral standbys like To Kill a Mockingbird and Intruder in the Dust, the first half of this Arne Glimcher movie tells the straight-ahead story of a poor young black man, accused of a crime he did not commit. The second half is about something else altogether. Despite its affinities with a more thoughtful type of legal drama, Just Cause turns out to be just as cynical and shallow as you might expect of a Hollywood currently in the thrall of O.J.-mania. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Children under 17 not admitted without an adult.)

*** MURDER IN THE FIRST - After three years in solitary confinement, an Alcatraz prisoner (Kevin Bacon) eludes a fellow inmate to death. He seems a shoe-in for the gas chamber until a cocky young lawyer (Christian Slater) decides to put the prison bust on trial for torture. As these underdogs take on the system, there's hardly any room for motivational ambiguity. The prisoner needs a friend and the lawyer needs a courtroom victory. And vice versa. We know they'll succeed and become the best of friends because... what else could possibly happen? It really would be cruel and unusual to make a film about two little guys who throw caution to the winds, challenged the almighty powers that be and - lost or found out - they had nothing in common. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Children under 17 not admitted without an adult.)

** NOBODY'S FOOL - Paul Newman plays a cranky construction worker with a bum knee and a bum personal history. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Not recommended for children.)

**** OUTBREAK - Fast-paced, smart, and camp as a thriller could be, Wolfgang Petersen's film packs the same scary, funny punch of an old-fashioned horror movie. Dustin Hoffman stomps and fumes as a principled army doctor determined to beat a killer virus. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Children under 17 not admitted without an adult.)

*** THE QUICK AND THE DEAD - Sharon Stone doesn't act in Sam Raimi's darkly stylized Western; she poses. It's her most vain and mannered performance to date. And Raimi's slick visual direction only adds to the sense that Stone's horse has wandered way off course. His Old West feels closer to Madison Avenue than to the OK Corral. Gold bullets whiz and amber liquids spill in the lush slow-motion of a light beer ad; the contestants in a shoot-to-kill gunfight are filmed by a camera that rushes toward them at frantic Big Mac-attack speeds. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Parental guidance very strongly advised.)

*** ROB ROY - Along with the biographical nitty-gritty that screenwriter Alan Sharp has dutifully, and often floridly, transcribed from the real life of Scottish folk hero Robert Roy MacGregor, a random sampling of inspirational truisms are also on hand to spice things up a bit. These approximate how Scarlett O'Hara might have sounded if she'd spoken with a brogue, traded in her hoop skirt for a tartan kilt, and been played by Liam Neeson. The film is humorless. Despite its uncanny resemblance to a Monty Python lampoon, Michael Caine Jones's movie recounts with grave reverence the trials suffered by the MacGregor clan. With fine performances by Jessica Lange and Tim Roth. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Children under 17 not admitted without an adult.)

*** 1/2 THE SHAWSHANK REDEMPTION - This deliberate picture about suffering and belief is set almost entirely within the gray confines of a maximum-security jail. Watching it, one begins to comprehend more fully the notion of hard labor. The difficulties the film poses are all superficial: Shawshank is ultimately no more complex or revealing for its dogged, overlong illustration of the claustrophobia and monotony of prison life. If anything, the uninspired depiction of this drab routine is used cynically by the filmmakers to make us itchy and eager for the final onslaught of super-sappy clichés. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Parental guidance strongly advised.)

THEATER

All shows are in Hebrew except those marked with a star. Times are p.m. unless otherwise stated.

JERUSALEM

THE END - Multimedia presentation based on the myth of Narcissus. (Haberna, 4 Yad Harutzim, Tues., 9)
HAMETZ - A bleak look at what Israel has become. A powerful play, superbly directed and acted by an all-star cast, spells promise of a renaissance of great Hebrew theater. One of the most outstanding dramas to have hit our stage in years. (Jerusalem Theater, Sat., 9; Sun., Tues., 8:30 = 610011)
MISS ISRAEL - Spoof of beauty contests with political message. (Khan, Mon. and Thurs., 8:30; Tues. and Wed., 4)
THE WEDDING - Written by Bertolt Brecht. With Aliza Rosen and Motti Katz. (Khan, Sat., 9:30; Sun., 9)

TEL AVIV AREA

CHILD'S PLAY - Two newcomers to Tel Aviv are let down by what the big city has to offer until they meet up with Mr. Success. With Dorit Nital, Woody Friedman, Doron Tsafir. Tender and charming. (Old Jaffa, Hasmita, Sat., 9:30 = 6812128)
CONVERSATIONS WITH MY FATHER - Joint Bell Lissin-Halia Theater production. Amusing play about a Jewish family trying to make it in America. A touching Jewish-American drama ruined by incongruous casting and awkward directing. (Eretz Yisrael Museum, tonight, 9:30; Sat., 9 = 6422059)
CYPRUS - Israeli play about a couple going through a divorce. (ZOA House, Sun.-Thurs., 8:30)
THE FALL - One-man play based on Camus's novel about the hypocrisy of society. (Old Jaffa, Hasmita, Sat., 9)
FREESTYLE MURDER - Three actors tell the same story in different styles. (T.A. Museum, tonight, 10)
FUNNY MONEY - Comedy about a man who finds a suitcase full of money. Tight direction, a well-knit team of gifted comedy actors plus a hilarious script make this comedy of endless errors one of the most entertaining, wholesome shows of the season. (Holon Theater, tonight, 10; Bell Hatelutsoth, Sat., 9:30)
HAMETZ - See J'lam. (Ra'anana, Tel Aviv, Wed. and Thurs., 9)
THE HOMECOMING - Harold Pinter play translated by Eyalan Blum. Camerl workshop for young directors. An example of highly accomplished acting and directing. (Tzavia, Mon., 8:30)
HOLY WATER - A satire about the life of society. A fast-paced, frothy production leaves the audience in stitches as it satirizes the satire. (Bell Lissin, tonight, 8:30; Sun., 9; Sun.-Tues., 8:30 = 6957968; Dohi, Thurs., 9)
INDEPENDENCE - The brother of a fallen soldier is due for call-up and his parents have the option to release him from combat service. (Old Jaffa, Hasmita, tonight, 10; Wed., 9 = 6826729)
MEETING AT THE SUPERMARKET - A chance meeting between a widower and a widow leads to a relationship full of hope and disappointment. (Old Jaffa, Hasmita, Tues., 9 = 6826729)
ROMEO AND JULIET - Ehud Harpaz's new translation of Shakespeare's classic. Camerl Theater production directed by Rina Yershtal. An eclectic concept, brilliant acting, and a castrated text, though not without a certain superficial charm. (ZOA House, Tues. and Wed., 8:30 = 6959341)
THE ROSE TATTOO - By Tennessee Williams. Starring Roena Kamboos and Yael Sade. (Habema, Sat., 9)
A SERVANT WITH TWO MASTERS - Goldoni's comedy of errors starring Shmuel Vilosny. A slick and uproariously funny rendering of Goldoni's masterpiece. (Habima, Wed. and Thurs., 8:30)
SHIRAZ LEVIN IS DEAD AND LIVING IN TEL AVIV - Monodrama. (ZOA House, Mon., 8)
THAT BITCH HEIDI - Acre Festival play, written and directed by Ayellet Ron. Satirical comedy. (ZOA House,

'Shira Levin Is Dead and Living In Tel Aviv,' from this year's TheaterNetto Festival, is performed at ZOA House.

tonight, 10; Sat., 9)
TOUCH WOOD - Story of a soldier and his friend during the Yom Kippur War. Lively declaiming of a tenuous text that intermittently grips with the sense of the soldier in action. (Tzavia 2, Tues., 9)

TRIO IN E FLAT - Eric Rohmer's drama on the age-old theme of youth and romance. (Old Jaffa, Hasmita, tonight, 10:30 = 6826729)

A cure for the summertime blues

Penny Starr

Fancy that. ABC's Prime Time must read The Jerusalem Post. Last week I joked that someone should get an interview with Michael and Lisa-Marie. This week Tel-Ad announced it will be showing an exclusive interview the Jacksons did with Diane Sawyer. I told you Tel-Ad was the best.

The other franchisees seem to be feeling the heat and are battling for ratings, even though there's no such thing as sweeps week here. (The closest thing we get is episodes of shows about shows, like The Larry Sanders Show, Murphy Brown and ENG.) Keshet has been making a special effort to improve its programming. On Tuesday, it dumped a lot of its locally produced shows for good imported ones. Maybe Gabi Gazit and the folks from Feedback are really on holiday, but that's fine for viewers.

We got Moonlighting at 8:30 p.m., and at 9:50 p.m. they pulled out one of their best films, Scat of a Woman.

I'm sure the various TV companies slack their best films on shelves, saving them until there's a holiday, when they all pull them out at the same time. That way you can't decide what to watch and end up zapping through five films that all start at 10, so when the film is repeated just one month later you can't remember whether you've seen it or not.

I CAN'T remember ever seeing such a fuss about a fashion show here. On Saturday (9:05 p.m.), Channel 2 devoted nearly two hours to Wearing Peace, the much-hyped parade at Caesarea. Except for being a town's outdoors broadcast, it's a relatively cheap and lazy way to fill a Saturday night slot. It was a kitschy idea, not honored by the presence of any supermodels or top designers, and had very little to do with peace. Even so, for this country's first big fashion show, it was well done.

Among the dresses were various combinations of Palestinian, Jordanian and Israeli flags, plenty of dove symbols and a few real doves.

Somebody's living-room net curtains also made it to the show, ruffled and trailing round a leggy model. Jean-Paul Gaultier made what I suppose was an obscure reference to living together in harmony with the tuxedo tails that formed the trail of a dress. But I couldn't figure out the connection of the metal bodices to peace.

Although Caesarea's amphitheater looked beautiful, the 35-step double staircase seemed treacherous for the high-heeled models descending it. Luckily they could walk slowly to the music, a kind of triumphant neo-Egyptian fanfare. I half expected the women to be carried in on litters like Elizabeth Taylor in Cleopatra accompanied by a cast of thousands.

IN CHANNEL 1's Gettysburg (Tuesday, 10:30 p.m.), there really is a cast of thousands. The first of the six-part series about the 1863 Battle of Gettysburg during the American Civil War had hundreds of soldiers marching and riding across some glorious countryside.

The extravagant and highly acclaimed production stars Tom Berenger, Martin Sheen and Jeff Daniels, but it's difficult to recognize them under all that adhesive facial hair - the bushy beards, magnificent mustaches and muldooches.

As the cavalry approached the town, the mayor waddled up and demanded to know what was going on, why and for how long. After he left someone commented, "The trouble with politicians is they're too fat and they talk too much, and they never think twice about asking a man to die for them."

Oprah Winfrey, looking extremely svelte, offered a 'fat-busting week' on her show. (UNIVERSAL PICTORIAL PRESS)

NO ONE looked particularly overweight on Larry King Live on Saturday (4 a.m., CNN), even though the weighty guests were Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin, Jordan's King Hussein and PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat.

None of them talked too much either. They were all extremely civil and made a point of paying each other compliments at every opportunity. King was on his best behavior and didn't try to kiss any of them. (Well, it's harder via satellite.)

The hour zipped by and, apart from getting Rabin to extend invitations to everyone, King didn't ask the hard questions. His Madge came off looking best, but then he's the charmer among the three.

OPRAH WINFREY has always looked good, even when she was a little chubbier. The newly svelte talk-show hostess had "fat-busting week" on her show last week (Monday to Friday, Star Plus, 11 a.m.).

It was a horrible experience for anyone who has just discovered Hellman's Mayonnaise and Haagen Dazs ice cream on the supermarket shelves here.

Oprah sent her personal chef (doesn't everybody need one? That's what I'm getting when I win the Lotto) to someone's house to clear the kitchen cupboards of naughty foods.

We all know in our hearts that mayonnaise and ice cream are bad. What was shocking was to see how much fat there is in food you thought was OK. Granola, for goodness' sake! Ground beef!

Back in the studio, chef Rosie inspired us with some skinny recipes, and a dietician wowed us with food tips. Thirty-eight liters of water and a thousand pieces of fruit a day. Something like that.

At the end of it all a personal trainer got us up and, er, well, not running. Not even walking.

Just some fast waddling, china up, arms swinging. Some lovely ladies on Oprah's staff went out into the cold Chicago air in sweat suits, trackuits and scarves and had a go at it.

Yeah, you thought about it too, didn't you, and decided it was too hot.

'Rob Roy,' the BBC miniseries - not to be confused with the movie in current release - gets underway tonight.

Never Never Land (1980), Channel 2, 11:00
Following her parents' divorce a young girl is sent to live with her aunt. To dispel her loneliness she writes letters to Peter Pan and receives replies from a lonely, old man (88 mins).

Rob Roy, Channel 1, 16:40
New, six-part, BBC adaptation of Sir Walter Scott's book about the "Scotland's Robin Hood." Starring Robin Sachs, Andrew Faulde and Anthony Higgins.

The Indian Runner (1991), Movie Channel, 22:00
Sean Penn makes a fine debut as a writer/director in this sensitive drama about a man who tries to rebuild his relationship with his troubled younger brother who has just returned from Vietnam. Starring David Morse, Viggo Mortensen and Patricia Arquette (120 mins).

La Double Vie de Veronique (1991), Second Showing, 22:00
Director Krzysztof Kieslowski spins a haunting tale of two identical women - one Polish and the other French - whose lives are connected although they never meet. The film earned the critic's prize at Cannes in 1991, and Irene Jacob won for Best Actress (92 mins).

To Be Or Not To Be (1983), Channel 1, 22:05
Remake of 1942 film by the same name. A Polish pilot is dropped into Nazi-occupied Warsaw. He seeks refuge in a satirical theater as the Gestapo search for him. Starring Mel Brooks and Anne Bancroft (108 mins).

David Lee Roth is concealing more than a checked past in The Key.

The Key (1972), Movie Channel, 12:00
Based on Alistair MacLean's novel about an underwater expedition to investigate the people responsible for the death of a nuclear submarine in a plane crash. Starring Barry Newman and Burt Reynolds. Directed by Michael Tuchner. (100 mins)

My Children's Eyes (1992), Family Channel, 21:00
Writer/director Neil Jordan presents a striking drama about a young boy who is the only child of a soldier. An IRA volunteer (Stephen Rea) is killed in a battle. His wife (Forest Whitaker) and her young son (David Byrne) are involved with the soldier's lover. David Byrne plays the boy. Directed by Neil Jordan. (100 mins)

A Day (1933), Second Showing, 30:00
A poor old apple-seller who dresses up as an aristocrat to marry his daughter who is visiting with her fiancé. Starring Mary Pickford and Guy Kibbee (95 mins).
